How this nomination will apply to your accounts

This nomination only applies to the account shown in Section 1 Your personal details. If you have more than one account, you will need to complete a separate death benefit nomination form for each account. Other accounts could include additional super accounts and income stream accounts. You cannot make a non-binding death benefit nomination for defined benefit (including deferred benefit) accounts. The appropriate forms are available on our website at aware.com.au/forms, and from customer service.

* If you are a Police Blue Ribbon Super or Ambulance Officers' Super member, this nomination will apply to your compulsory insurance account and any Police Blue Ribbon Super or Ambulance Officers' Super superannuation account you hold; you cannot make a separate nomination for each account. You can nominate either account number in Section 1 Your personal details.

Who you can nominate

A non-binding nomination records your preferences for distributing your death benefit. Although we will take your preferences into account, we have the final say on how your death benefit is distributed. If you would like to provide firm instructions about who you would like your benefit paid to, you should think about making a binding death benefit nomination. A non-binding nomination lasts forever and doesn't need to be updated, unless your circumstances or preferences change.

The people you may nominate under a non-binding nomination must be one or more of the following at the time of your death, otherwise the trustee may be unable to pay your benefit to them:

- your spouse or de facto spouse (whether of the same sex or a different sex)
- your children, including step, adopted and ex-nuptial children
- any person(s) financially dependent on you
- a person in an interdependency relationship with you
- your legal personal representative – the executor or administrator of your estate.

If you don't have any dependants, you may nominate one or more other individual(s) to receive your benefit. You can only nominate individual(s); not a charity, trust, company or your pets. The trustee is only able to pay another individual if you don't have any dependants (as noted above) and a legal personal representative is not appointed for your estate when you die.

If you don't have any dependants and want certainty about the payment of your superannuation benefit in the event of your death, we suggest you speak with a financial planner about estate planning.

For more information, refer to the Member Booklet Supplement: Nominating beneficiaries.

The total of your nominations (whether you make one or more nominations) MUST add up to 100%. Your nomination(s) will be invalid if the total is not 100%. No decimals are allowed. If, for example, you want to split your death benefit into thirds, you should round the split to the nearest whole percentage e.g. 33%, 33% and 34%.

You should ensure that you review your nomination when your personal circumstances change, although the trustee can take any change in your personal circumstances into account in deciding who to pay.
